

Darling Irrigation now serving region

DARLING Irrigation opened in 2004 as a creative transformation of a rural merchandise store in Bourke, Darling Fertilisers.

This business, owned by the Maroulis family since 1972, was operated by Theofanis and Bill Maroulis.

The millennium drought hit all agricultural-related businesses hard on the Western Plains, and it was this catalyst that sparked the reinvention of the business at the hands of Sam and Phoebe Maroulis into today's Darling Irrigation.

Darling Irrigation started installing small drip irrigation systems and quickly added stockwater pipelines to its list of competencies. In 2005 'Kings Hire and Sales' was purchased in Narromine and quickly transformed into a water shop, bolstering retail sales.

A few years later the business moved into design and installation of centre pivot, linear move irrigators and boom irrigators for broadacre customers.

The business joined forces

Brett Tingle, Gerard Birkback and Leon Larsen from Darling Irrigation's Wagga-based centre at Ag 'N' Vet on Bomen Road.

with Australian owned agribusiness, AGnVET Services in 2007.

In recent years Darling Irrigation has increased its service offering to include mining and government infrastructure schemes.

Today, it has a staff of about 50 and outlets in Bourke, Narromine, Wagga and Forbes.

The business is growing at an ever increasing pace and offering a vast array of water and irrigation related products and services.
