Events and functions galore

THE Garden Court Restaurant will be holding a number of special events and functions in the coming months.

The traditional cabaret shows will again be on. They are set down for Friday and Saturday nights of November 29 and 30, December 6 and 7 and December 13 and 14.

Dirty Dicks will also be performing at the venue on December and 21.

Tickets cost $80 for each show and include a three-course meal.

To help promote Breast Cancer Month and raise money for the Wagga Breast Cancer Support Group, Elements at Garden Court will be hosting a charity ladies lunch on October 20.

The event will consist of three courses of dessert, all with matched cocktails.

Tickets cost $70 per person.

On October 18, there will be a wine appreciation dinner, with four courses as well as canapés.

Tickets cost $80.

For bookings, to all events or to arrange your own private function, contact 69255 660 or email elements@hotmail.com.au.

Elements at Garden Court owner and head chef Adam Mclean

Garden Court under new management

WELL-KNOWN and respected Wagga chef Adam Mclean of Elements restaurant has branched out and expanded his business.

The experienced chef, who honed his skills in Canberra before moving to Wagga, has taken over the popular Garden Court Restaurant.

Keen to give the complex a facelift, based at the Wagga Botanic Gardens, Adam has taken over the business and brought his Elements restaurant team with him.

This includes restaurant manager Roger Gamble.

Elements was previously based at the Wagga Country Club.

"We are very excited about the opportunity to run our own venue, out time at the country club was rewarding but as we have grown it became desirable to have our own dedicated function centre," Adam said.

The Garden Court is available for functions seven days a week – be it breakfasts, dinner, wedding, family or corporate event.

It has been under Adam's management since the start of June.

"We provide Wagga's highest-quality food for large functions and events, a reputation we carry from the Country Club where we catered 30 weddings and numerous other functions last year alone," he said,

"All our food is produced in-house from scratch by our experienced and professional kitchen team."

As well as the restaurant arm of the business, Adam and his staff are also operating the popular kiosk at the Botanic Garden.

The kiosk is open five days a week during winter – Thursday to Monday – and increasing to six and seven days a week during the warmer months.

It has hot food, sweets, snacks and, most importantly, good quality coffee for those enjoying time at the park.
