

We know

at Goulburn Produce & Rural Supplies

Just like the first opening

ON April 28, 1989, when the Sloane St, Goulburn Produce and Rural Supplies was officially opened people from all round the district flocked to the store to see how it had been transformed and to grab one or several of the many bargains on offer.

This Saturday, the return of Mitre 10 to Goulburn is your opportunity to do something similar. Come and view the new layout, see the expanded range of products, grab a bargain or several and perhaps win a prize.

There will be trade representatives on hand too to provide advice and conduct demonstrations of products.

For the kids there will be face painting and the Dulux Dog will also make an appearance.

Above: Neil Godfrey celebrates his 20th year working with Goulburn Produce this month. At present he is at home recuperating but is itching to get back to work.

Below: Neil in September 1993 at Goulburn Produce where he brought his wood machining skills to enhance the timber section of the business.

Here for the longhaul

Neil Godfrey

THE resident Timber expert, Neil has been in the timber industry since his first day out of school in 1963.

Starting out as an apprentice wood machinist at Godfreys, Neil spent his five year apprenticeship under Mill foreman Stuart Jones, before leaving at the age of 21 for a job in Rose Hill.

Jumping back and forth between jobs, Neil settled back in at Godfreys as a mill foreman some years later, where he stayed for 20 years until their closure.

This month marks Neil's twentieth year working at Goulburn Produce.

Neil prides himself on his knowledge of timber and the ability to advise people on what material is best for a particular job.

Goulburn Produce can match the profile of a wide range of skirting boards and other trims for heritage restorations. All you have to do is bring in a sample of the original.

"If we don't have the profile in stock or a cutter to match we can either source it or get a cutter made up to do the job," Neil said.

Brimming with local knowledge and trade experience, Neil still works wood machines at Goulburn Produce, and enjoys dabbling in timber work at home, creating personal furniture and dog kennels (which are sold in-store).

1828928

Natural products for sustainability

Calciprill® - the new choice for liming

- Rapid pH adjustment
- Convenient application by fertiliser spreader
- No annoying dust
- Cost effective

Please contact your Rural Store or phone 1800 251 306
www.omya.com.au

