GEORGE and Wilhelmina 'Willy' Economos first opened their doors to the Shoalhaven on April 4, 1980.

They have now been feeding the hungry people of Nowra for 34 years.

George and Willy worked the business for many years themselves, until they were joined by their beloved sons Jim and Pete.

Jim helped George manage the small family takeaway for 14 years and was later joined by his younger siblings Matina and Leo.

Over the years the Oasis Takeaway has employed non-family members who have become just like family to the Economoses. "We think of our staff as family," Leo said.

"In fact, one of our staff

Lorraine commented to me the other day that she just loves coming to work every day. It's a real testament to a family-owned business."

The faces of the well-known family have become a familiar sight for the Nowra public.

Colleen Little has been working for the Economoses for over 21 years now and is part of the furniture.

Amanda Moulds has been with the team for 13 years and James Economos, a cousin of the family, has racked up three years with more to come.

Lorraine Thompson, "the newbie", as Leo put it, rounds out the team who are sure to serve the Shoalhaven for many years to come.
