THE KINDY KIDS ARE BACK! Strutting their best smiles and funniest expressions, today we present Goulburn and district's kindergarten students in all their glory. Our special eight-page feature pictures the children reading, laughing, playing, hanging upside down and well, generally being themselves. Here, Chloe Cooper, Isla Stephenson, Emma McCormack and Travis Rowles from Laggan Public School show they're best mates. See pages 13-20

Police arrest 'firebug'

A 35-YEAR-OLD Marulan Rural Fire Service volunteer appeared in Goulburn Local Court yesterday charged with deliberately lighting five blazes in the Marulan area this year. Craig John Harris, of Stony Creek Road, Marulan, was given $1000 conditional bail to appear in court again today. He was placed under a 7pm-7am curfew, and ordered not to participate in any RFS activities in Marulan, or anywhere else. He entered no plea to five separate charges of intentionally causing a fire and being reckless as to its spread.

RFS volunteer faces five charges

Police alleged in facts tendered to the bail hearing that Harris lit the last of these fires at Towrang on Monday, and was arrested at his home by Goulburn detectives a couple of hours later. Detectives, RFS investigators and fire experts had been investigating a series of allegedly deliberately lit blazes which all occurred within the Marulan RFS operational area.

As well as Monday's fire near properties beside the Old Hume Highway, Towrang, police allege Harris started fires on January 12, beside Brayton Road, Marulan; January 13, in Murphy's Lane, Marulan; January 15, beside the railway line (Station Street), Marulan; January 15, beside the Old Hume Highway, Marulan.
