CONGRATULATIONS! Orange Christian School, HSC High Achievers

Orange Christian School wishes to congratulate its 2013 HSC high achievers. The following students have excelled in their studies this year, achieving band 6 in the following subjects: Caelan Maxon in Modern History and Community and Family Studies, Bronte Glasby in Community and Family Studies, Abigail Carter in Modern History, and Ben Ryan in Music.

While this year's cohort have all performed extremely well, these students in particular have achieved at the highest level in their subject areas and should be justifiably proud of all they have attained. Congratulations to all of you and to all those who have supported you in partnership throughout your studies. In 2013, early entry offers were made to 15 students from a cohort of 23. This represents 65% of OCS's Year 12 cohort being offered university places before their results had been determined. These offers were for a range of courses from Charles Sturt University, Southern Cross University, and University of Wollongong. This, coupled with our students' excellent HSC results is testimony to all the effort put in by our 2013 cohort.

At OCS, it is our aim to raise leaders of Godly character. Our 2013 Year 12 students have not only excelled themselves academically, but have also demonstrated their great strengths as leaders within both our school and broader community. As these students journey to take up their places in the world, we pray that the qualities they exemplify will be used to positively impact our world. Congratulations Year 12, 2013. May God bless you richly, and know that OCS will continue to uphold you in prayer.

Students' big night

AN end of year dinner dance was held for James Sheahan Catholic High School year 10 students recently.

The students celebrated at Duntryleague with a formal evening of speeches, dinner and a lot of fun.

School principal Mark Pauschmann said the student-organised event ran smoothly.

"It was a fantastic evening," he said.

A cult hit has a welcome sequel

By ED GIBBS

ALMOST a decade has passed since Ron Burgundy and the Channel Four News crew were seen swinging their supersized egos across a San Diego studio room floor.

Nine years on, Ron Burgundy (Ferrell) has left the sleepy streets of 1970s San Diego for the bright 1980s lights of the Big Apple. Now married to co-anchor Veronica Corningstone (Christina Applegate), Burgundy is flying high, until, that is, the pair's new boss, Mack Harken (Harrison Ford) bumps Corningstone up into primetime, and dumps Burgundy altogether.

After a spectacularly inept suicide attempt, a washed-up Ron is rescued by his former producer (Dylan Baker), who rallies behind his one-time news champ.

Reignited, Burgundy then reconnects with his posse, Champ Kind (David Koechner), Brian Fantana (Paul Rudd) and weatherman Brick Tamland (Steve Carell), who then face-off with slick newscaster Jack Lime (James Marsden), himself now oblivious to change. Delivering 24-hour news inexplicably brings Burgundy and his merry band of misfits back into vogue.
